One page 231, Wright says, "And when people cease to be surrounded by beauty, they cease to hope..." and on page 223, "part of being made in God's image that we are ourselves creators or at least procreator." Sin is not located in one place and goodness in others – sin is everywhere and so is God. So: Take a mental tour around Calvin's campus (maybe focus on areas you visit often or ones related to the discipline(s) you want to specialize in...or, think about art and other human-created beautiful things around campus). What do you see, what do the people in this space value; where do they find beauty and how do they look at the world in a particular way?

One place I found interesting is the mineral museum. I think people value the beauty of God's creation even through rocks and minerals in the ground. One place I find beauty is in all of the large trees on campus. With the fall weather and the color change in the leaves is amazing.

• a place I find beauty is at the Spoelhoff pool. I see the beauty in people using their body and gifts the Lord gave them to praise Him and give back. There's beauty in the teams and ~~how~~ how we encourage and support teammates.
